

Hillbillies play to capacity crowds

"Let me tell you all a story 'bout a man named Jed..." with a whole lot of help from the Elk Point Community Choir and Friends, who presented their rendition of the onetime television series and recent hit movie to four capacity crowds of theatre goers the past two weekends in Elk Point.

The 'friends' include the string quintet and percussionist, a group of wild and woolly hillbillies from way back in Ferguson Flats, Primrose and thereabouts, who accompanied a rustically-attired Lawrence Pidluzny in the theme song.

Then we're back in the Ozarks, at the simple home of a simple, down-home kind of guy, Mr. Jed Clampett (Don Conrad), his mother-in-law Granny Moses (Linda Grabas), and his lovely (but uncommonly strong!) daughter Elly May (Denise Adkins). Ol' Jed' and Granny are getting to worrying, because Elly May is gettin' near to marryin' age, but would much rather wrestle critters than fixing herself up and acting like a young lady.

But maybe they don't need to worry. Why, this particular day, she was out in the swamp and that was no critter she dragged back - but a very scared oil company geologist. He and his boss had been checking out the pesky oil that was bubblin' up out there, and when the boss (Don Bury) came searching for his helper (Andrew McGregor), he had some astonishing news for Jed: he wanted to buy the swamp. Jed was a mite hesitant, fearing he was cheating these poor misguided strangers, but signed on the dotted line, figuring maybe a few dollars could help in the search for a beau for Elly May.

A few dollars? A few million, that's what, and Cousin Pearl (Rita Sanregret) faints dead away when she hears the news, after she and her son Jethro (Shaun Sheplawy) detour through the henhouse on their way to the Clampetts. She recovers her senses, and tries to knock some into Jed - the place for a millionaire like him is in Californy, not the backwoods. Even Grannie is eventually convinced to try out a new climate, and Jethro goes along to drive the truck.

Then, some "Good Ol' Mountain Music," and a little snort of "Mountain Dew" courtesy of four "Bloomin' Grannies," accompanied by the hillbilly band, as the scene changed drastically to a

Spring comes to Town Council

Spring arrived in Elk Point last Monday just as Town Council was discussing a need for installation of fencing and other safety barriers around the Town's water intake at the river, to prevent any possible accidents at the site.

A few other springtime topics were on the agenda. Councillor Dan Povaschuk agreed to be the Town's representative to the North East Alberta Recreation Association, since he is involved in various sports. Povaschuk also agreed to accompany the Town Manager to a North East Alberta Marketplace meeting later in the week.

A query was received from the FCSS Department, regarding summer play programming. This was formerly run with a STEP position, and was not funded, to the best of Council's knowledge, with Town or recreation department money. Council would have no objection to such a program being run in Elk Point, but noted it would have to be self-supporting.

FCSS was discussed at several points on the agenda, as Council answered concerns coming out of their latest board meeting, and discussed a letter from FCSS asking for support for continuation of the FCSS Act and funding by the Province. FCSS is now autonomous from the Town, and only requires Council approval for their board appointments. Council took note of their concern regarding the increased cost of paper, and agreed that both FCSS and Town should look at ways to conserve it. Council was asked regarding the availability of Town dollars for seniors transportation, and agreed that any transportation money which is available is needed to put toward the ambulance subsidy. The Elks Lodge has some funds available for the hospital's handi-van, if that is what is needed.

Word has been received from the Minister of Municipal Affairs that the FCSS funding will continue for this year. The eventual fate of FCSS in the community will apparently be decided by the residents, by way of a plebiscite at the time of this fall's municipal election.

The Town has been approached by the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce, who are hoping that the towns of Elk Point and St. Paul and the County of St. Paul will join together to access the Business Attraction Information System (BAIS), which would link the communities with people across the world via the Internet computer system. This was tabled until further information is obtained.

Elk Point has been contacted by the County regarding the possibility of joint ownership of the airport, at such time as the title is turned over. Council agreed that this would be a good move.

Site enhancement grant approved

An application for funding toward enhancement of interpretive and physical features of Fort George-Buckingham House Provincial Historic Site has received approval. Friends of the Forts - Fort George / Buckingham House Society has received word that $16,870 in assistance has been authorized for the $47,500 project.

Funding will be provided by the federal and provincial governments on a 50-50 basis, from Canada's Minister of Industry, Science and Technology and from Alberta's Minister responsible for Northern Development.

The project involves the addition of interpretive signs and ground markings to enhance the Interpretive Centre by defining and interpreting the actual sites of the forts, which will increase the length of visits to the site and create additional economic benefits for the area.

CHIPPING AWAY AT ARENA DEBT - B & R Transport, represented by Doug Bassett (left), presented a $1000 donation toward the Arena Debt Reduction Project last week. Arena Operating Committee chairman Kevin Bjornstad accepted the welcome contribution. Pan Canadian Petroleum also made a large contribution this week, see Page 12.

FCSS concerned about future funding

Elk Point FCSS is asking groups and individuals in the area for their assistance in lobbying the provincial government for the continuation of funding for preventive social services programs. This funding would be in jeopardy if the 25 year old FCSS Act and its accompanying Regulations were removed, as has been discussed recently.

Last year the Province transferred FCSS from the Family and Social Services Department to Municipal Affairs. Municipal Affairs then declared all funding would be unconditional and would not have to be set aside for FCSS. Communities across the province protested this decision, with the result that Municipal Affairs reversed their decision and gave communities the choice of unconditional or conditional funding.

Elk Point Town Council and its FCSS Board unanimously chose the conditional funding, which meant that the municipality would use those dollars for preventive programs and services that are identified and planned within the community.

Elk Point FCSS provides services ranging from Meals on Wheels to Parenting Workshops, from Child Care Services to Tax Assistance, which span the needs of every age group in the community.

If you believe in the principle of prevention, Elk Point FCSS hopes you will write to Premier Klein, MLA Paul Langevin and Minister of Municipal Affairs Tom Thurber to ask that legislation be put in place to preserve dollars for preventive programs. For further information, please call FCSS Director Terri Ehler at 724-3800.

Interagency studying crisis services

Elk Point Interagency Committee's March meeting centred on the perceived need for community-based crisis intervention and stabilization services in northeast Alberta.

Five core areas have been established to study this need, and Elk Point has been put in a cluster with Bonnyville, Cold Lake and Glendon. Meetings between the cluster communities have been called to identify primary and secondary resources which are available to respond to crisis, as well as to determine and define the characteristics of a crisis.

The five cluster groups will meet at the end of March to share their findings and determine needs. The recommendations coming out of this meeting will be presented to the Regional Health Authority for possible implementation at the community level.

Whether Interagency is the group to pursue this initiative in the community, and whether the current cluster is the appropriate group for Elk Point to be involved with, were subject to serious discussion within the group. A subcommittee was struck to determine the most advantageous cluster, and then to express concerns with the definition of crisis, which seems to apply to only a fraction of the concerns facing this area's people. They will report back to Interagency on their findings.

The next Interagency meeting is slated for April 4.

Canada Day Committee to meet April 4

Canada Day is just over 3 months away, and Elk Point is getting ready to plan for the big event.

Canada Day Chairman Joe Brunner has called the first meeting of the Canada Day Committee for Wednesday, April 4 at 7 p.m. in Town Council chambers.

Local groups who wish to be involved with the planning process are welcome to send representatives to the meeting, so they can help to lay the ground work for another memorable Canada Day celebration.

Strong families: building family commitment

Last week we talked about what commitment is and isn't, commitment within the marriage and coping with heavy work demands. This week we'll look at building family commitment and ideas for setting family goals.

One way to increase commitment to family, especially in younger members of the family, is to encourage everyone to share in plans that involve everyone. Examples of some goals that all family members can help plan are a family vacation, a trip to grandparents, a holiday celebration, acquiring some recreation equipment, or redecoration of a kitchen or family room.

When family members are involved, each person has a chance to share what he or she thinks is important. With this kind of involvement, you'll find family members are more committed to seeing that goals are carried out.

Teenagers will be much more willing to go on a family vacation if they have helped to decide where to go and what to do. This holds true in other areas. You need to take the time and make the effort to get input from each member of the family who will be involved.

Give everyone a share in the responsibility for family fun plans. Nothing builds individual self-esteem and a sense of belonging like making a personal contribution, no matter how small. For example, let your four-year-old fold and pack the napkins for your family picnic. If everyone takes part, you'll all enjoy it more.

When you plan as a family, you are saying "You are important and what you have to say counts." This process takes time and some flexibility, but the benefits are worth the efforts!

Ideas For Setting Family Goals: In many families things just happen without much planning. Here are some ideas for setting and successfully reaching family goals.

1. Let each person in the family "brainstorm" about his or her wants and needs. This means that everyone's ideas, no matter how unreachable, are listed first. This could include material things as well as non-material things. Material things (new car, musical instrument, a family camping trip) and non-material things (humor, relaxation, good friends) may vary a lot from one family member to another.

2. After each person has brainstormed all of the ideas, look for common goals and arrange them in a workable way. Sort out impractical goals. Choose the goals that are the highest priority for the whole family.

3. Plan ways to reach your goal. Decide who or what can help you. These are your resources. Try to think of ways for each family member, even young children, to contribute.

4. Try to plan one step at a time. If it does not work as well as you had hoped, change it. After all, the plan is to help you reach your goal.

Family Councils Can Help: Have you decided to start a family council? Remember, a family council is a way for family members to discuss anything of common concern and importance to the family. This practice often strengthens commitment to family goals. Discuss what to do when people don't agree - or if conflict arises.

This is the last in the series of articles on Strong Families. Hope you enjoyed it! (Source - Iowa State University Extension)

Maximum effort

One of this community's greatest strengths is its volunteers. They're everywhere, running bingos, visiting shut-ins, raising funds to make life a little better for their chosen sector of the community. Some of these people volunteer for several organizations, and manage to find the time to fit in more when special occasions occur.

One of those special occasions was the March 17 - 19 weekend, when Elk Point hosted the Bantam Provincial tournament. The event brought together volunteers of all ages, and they were not just from the Agricultural Society's three sectors, Minor Hockey and Skating Club. There were volunteers from Red Cross, Friends of the Library, and more, digging in and doing their part to help put Elk Point's best foot forward. The Chamber of Commerce's retail merchants, too, did their part by sponsoring a GST-Free weekend in numerous businesses to welcome the visitors to the community.

All the work did not happen that weekend. Planning started months before, as soon as word was received that Elk Point had been chosen as the host community. Many hours of determining details, tying up loose ends, and setting out guidelines were necessary to ensure the weekend's success. Then came the soliciting of ads, the creation and production of the programs - again, all by volunteer work, and a massive job in itself.

All those who were involved in the weekend, in whatever capacity, can look back with pride in a job well done. The visitors were welcomed, the huge crowds well fed, everyone entertained, good hockey action enjoyed, and the facility kept in as tidy a condition as can be humanly expected with that amount of people involved.

The tournament weekend was a good example of people working together in harmony to produce a successful event. Now, on to more of the same: Canada Day's first organizational meeting comes up next week.

How did April Fool's Day begin?

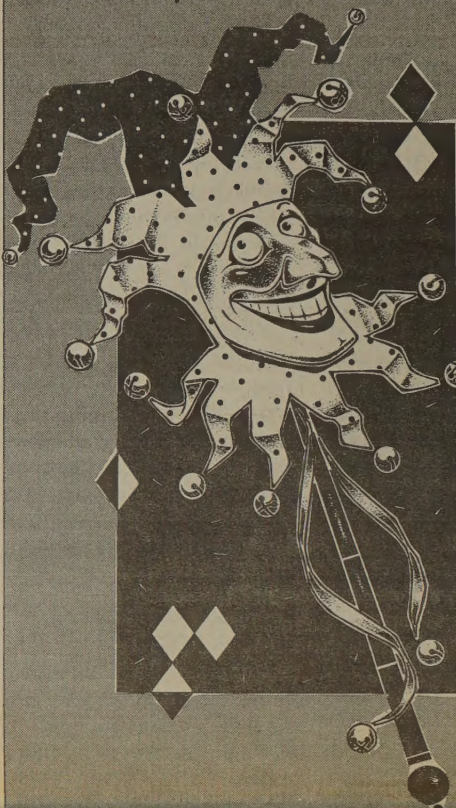

The custom of playing tricks on friends on April 1 is believed to have started in France more than 400 years ago. Before that time, one calendar was used throughout Europe and under this calendar, each new year began on April 1. On that day, people celebrated by exchanging gifts and visiting each other.

Then in 1564, King Charles IX of France adopted a new calendar and decreed that each new year should begin on January 1. While most people followed their king's decree, there were some who did not like the idea of the change and refused to accept the new calendar.

These people soon became the butt of jokes and tricks by their friends and neighbors because they continued to observe April 1 as New Year's Day. These friends and neighbors sent mock gifts, invited them to fake parties, and played tricks on them because they were April fools - people who clung to their April New Year's Day.

Today, the April Fool's tradition is still alive. What do you have planned for April Fool's Day? Remember, if the prank occurs after 12:00 noon, then the prankster is the fool!

Many visitors at Heritage Lodge

By Tracy Kjenner
Heritage Lodge

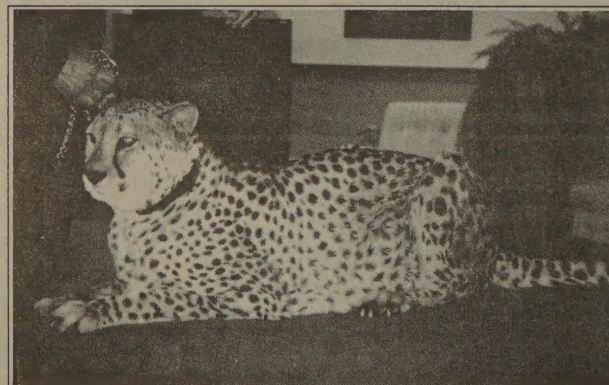

Heritage Lodge residents have been fortunate to have the opportunity to mix with some of the younger members of the community in recent weeks. Many thanks are extended to the Elk Point Ukrainian Dance Club organizers and dancers. The residents appreciated the opportunity to see the children dancing, and it was a special treat to have them come to the Lodge.

Members of the Baptist Youth Group were also very much appreciated as they came to the lodge to play cards, pool and games, and to visit with the residents. Inter-generational communication is so important and it is wonderful to have groups within our community that are so willing to provide such opportunities.

In addition to the children and youths, Lodge residents had a very special visitor on March 10. Al Oeming's cheetah was on tour and Heritage Lodge was one of many stopping points. The opportunity to see and touch the cheetah was exciting, even for many who had seen cheetahs before.

Residents were also fortunate to have Gabe Bayduza play the piano on the afternoon of March 17. Gabe regularly entertains the residents on Tuesday afternoons, and because they enjoy her music so much, it was requested that she come in on St. Patrick's Day. Thanks, Gabe, for your time, effort and cooperation. The St. Patrick's Day celebration at the lodge was completed with an in-house social which was held that evening. Music, games, much visiting, green snacks and beverages made for an enjoyable evening. The draw for the correct guess on the weight of the Lodge's own "Blarney Stone" was won by Louise Larson whose guess was 6.2 pounds while the rock weighed in at 6.0 pounds. Hope everyone had an enjoyable St. Patrick's Day.

And such a party it is - all the posh people are there, including Mrs. Stokley-Smythe (Bernice Zapisocki), Mr. Oglethorpe (Rocky Pilisko) and Mrs. Oglethorpe (Deanna Easthope), as well as Mrs. Pennyweather, Percy and all of Jethro's ladyfriends. Percy is under orders to sweep Elly May off her feet, and takes her out in the moonlight - not a good move, in view of the whuppin' she hangs on him for taking liberties, but they get engaged anyhow. Jethro somehow finds himself engaged to three at once, and working on a fourth.

The party is interrupted by the arrival of Miss Hathaway and detective Frank Richards (Lawrence Pidluzny), who wants to find out what really is going on in the Emaline situation. It's all confused by the Colonel, who starts sweet-talking Grannie, and Emaline, who dresses up in city duds and claims to be a police undercover agent, and shows Mr. Drysdale just how the cuckoo clock camera took the incriminating photos - more of which are coming up. Frank takes Elly May out looking for the missing Emaline, and ends up finding romance. Jethro breaks all his engagements, saying it wouldn't be fair to the rest of the world's women. He'll open a charm school instead.

As for Jed, he decides it would be only fitten to marry this young lady he has supposedly compromised, and take her back to the hills, but she declines and tells the colonel that if he wants Jed's money, he can marry Granny. She accepts, which scares him right out of sight. The party ends with music and dancing, and great fun for all.

One thing about it, all this excitement has Grannie convinced that Beverly Hills just might be an exciting place after all. Guess they'll stick around. Y'all come back now, y'hear?

The Beverly Hillbillies was directed by Heather Krupa, with David Pilisko as stage manager, Sheri Johnson as set designer, Terry Hebblethwaite as her assistant, Chris Johnson in charge of sets, Rob Walker doing the lighting and Debbie Lawrence and Ellen Seward doing the makeup. Generous contributions from Amoco Canada (Elk Point office), Pan Canadian Petroleum, Able Electric and Two Hills UFA helped with the production.

March news from Jack & Jill Playschool

By Diane Pashulka
Playschool Instructor

Hi, everyone! How are you enjoying this terrible cold weather? We all know that winter can bring everyone down and make you restless, but here at playschool we are having a 'funtastic' time. Outside we had a lot of fun rolling down the packed snow by the Elementary school and digging for gold. We found out that the school yard is full of gold, but we buried it so that only we could find it. It was hard work, but we were proud of ourselves at the end of the day. We plan to dig it up again in spring. Imagination does wonders for the spirit.

Inside we have been having a lot of fun and taking advantage of the gym facilities. Gymnastics has been part of the school curriculum for the past few weeks and we have been participating as well. I have found that I have many potential gymnasts as well as 'monkeys' in my class. They are very brave and willing to test their own strengths and limits. Children always find interesting and different uses for things. They are willing to explore new ideas and I am happy that playschool is the medium for these explorations. Plastic lids, makeshift frisbees, flew through the air with great ease and swiftness, and balloons attached themselves to our walls when rubbed through our hair. It has been an exciting month. At our Valentine's party the children made chocolates. I am sure that they are all ready for the Easter Bunny now and probably could help him with the making of the eggs. Valentine cards were exchanged and memories were made. I know that I will always cherish the lovely cards I received.

Our theme for the end of February was 'pets' and we had many of them brought right into the classroom. There were dogs, cats, a bunny and a fish. Mr. Wruth brought his Dalmatian puppy that everyone swore was 'Pongo' and he promises to bring in his baby goats sometime in the next few months. In the classroom we had a 'pet hospital' for the smaller stuffed pets where all of them were bandaged up and sent for some rest. We have many capable hands here at playschool.

During the month of March we will be discussing St. Patrick's Day and Community

Helpers. We hope to get out and visit many businesses around the community. The kindergarten class and Miss Ockerman will be one of the stops we will be making. Here the children will get their first view of the classroom and some of the things they will be doing next year or in the years to come. The first days of school can sometimes be threatening to young children and by doing this we hope to alleviate some of that fear. We will try and visit different places from years before and different from the places visited by kindergarten to give everyone a new experience. Hopefully the weather works with us and our ventures will be successful.

There are only a few short months left of Playschool and I am missing the children already. We encourage enrollment at any time during the year, so please feel free to call me any time. We are always willing to welcome a new face and to make new friends. Our number is 724-2400 and we are looking forward to hearing from you. Happy St. Patrick's Day. Have a fun and exciting month. We will.

Regional Board drafts transportations boundaries

The St. Paul Education Regional Division No. 1 is looking for public feedback on a set of transportation boundaries drafted by the board last week.

A map of the new boundaries can be viewed at the division's central office, secretary-treasurer Jean Champagne said Friday.

"The boundaries have been set up to try to address the concerns some people had with the old attendance areas," he said.

"At the same time, we want to balance the financial end of things."

The old boundaries, which remain in effect until the end of this school year, urged parents to send their children to schools within local attendance areas.

Under the new School Act, parents are entitled to send their children to the school of their choice, tuition-free. But the cost of transporting children to distant schools isn't covered by either level of government.

"The board simply can't afford to bus students around the division to whatever school they choose to attend," Champagne said.

"So it has set up these new boundaries, which indicate which schools students are eligible to be bussed to."

For the most part, he said, the boundaries are nearly the same as the old attendance boundaries — with some key exceptions.

"The board has set up a kind of buffer zone in a region north and west of St. Lina, and people there may be able to have their children bussed to either Ashmont or Mallaig, if the request is financially feasible," he said.

Other features of the new transportation boundaries include:

n straightening the border between the Elk Point and Heinsburg transportation areas (bringing a few more families into the Elk Point area);

n moving the Elk Point boundary slightly southward into the east wing of the County of Two Hills;

n expanding the St. Paul area slightly to the east, to include the Lac St. Cyr district;

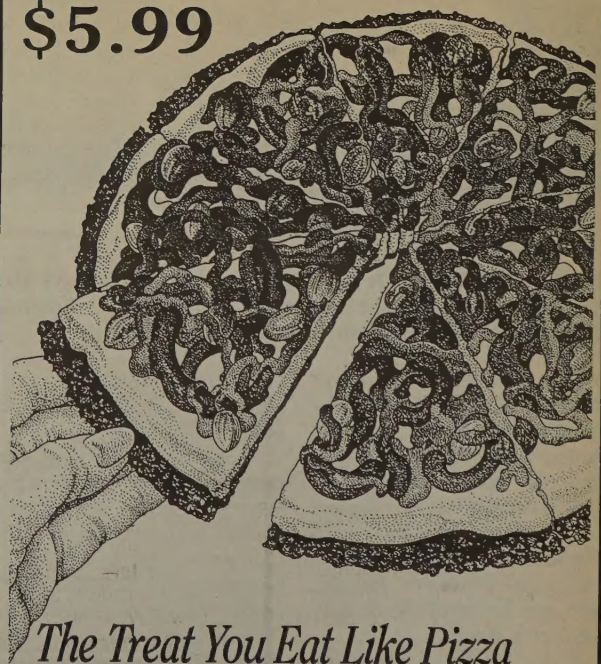

n expanding the St. Paul area slightly to the north and west of the town. Proportionately, Champagne said, the number of people affected by these changes will be "quite small". However, parents from around the division are welcome to come in and view the proposed map.

"The transportation boundaries will not be changed after the first day of classes in 1995-96," he said. "So if people have questions, they should come in and speak to transportation director Don Zarowny."

The board will likely pass a final draft of the boundaries in early April.

Three champions in a row

Bernard Boeckmann of Spring Creek Red Angus, Elk Point, has scored a hat trick at the Lloydminster Bull Sale, collecting his third Grand Championship in as many years.

Red Spring Creek Sam's Dynamite scored a hat trick of his own, winning First In Class and Junior Championship on his way to the Grand Championship. A total of 51 Red Angus bulls competed in the show, along with 487 from 8 other breeds. Boeckmann's bull sold for $3150, well above the average for Red Angus of $2440. The overall sale average was $2586.

Boeckmann has been in the cattle business since 1980, and started raising purebred Red Angus in 1987. He now has 30 purebred cows, plus some heifers that will calve for the first time in 1996, as well as a commercial cattle herd. He took his first bull to Lloydminster in 1993, and won his first Grand Championship, going back for a repeat performance last year and again this year.

However, Boeckmann won't be making it four in a row. He and Chris Havener of Lazy H Simmentals have decided to bring the bull-selling business closer to home. The two ranches will combine their finest bulls for a sale March 7, 1996 in the Elk Point Fairgrounds Arena. Boeckmann says "we run around a lot selling bulls. We have the arena here, so why not have a sale close to home and benefit the whole community?" They also plan to offer commercial females at the sale.

As far as awards go, Boeckmann says "the people will decide who the grand champion is - by paying the highest price for him."

F. G. Miller High School automating with Columbia Library System

By Kelly Oszust

F. G. Miller High School

The Columbia Library System is a computerized system where all of the books in the library will have a bar code on the cover, and all of the students will have a patron card with a bar code on it as well.

The system's user mode is called OPAC (on line public access catalogue). Its purpose is to make the card catalogue obsolete, once it is set up, which according to librarian Denise Smereka will take approximately one to two years. The reason it will take so long, is because every book in the library will have to have a bar code put on it. As well, every piece of information will have to be typed into the computer's memory. Once this is done, if a student or teacher needs to find a book, all they need to do is type the name of the book into the computer, then the computer will tell them if the book is available, plus all the information that was once stored in the card catalogue.

This remarkable system will also make being a librarian much easier for Ms Smereka. She will not have to make an overdue list, all she will have to do is look on the computer. If a person has overdue books, or if a student owes a fee, the computer will not allow that person to sign out another book.

The Columbia system will also prepare the students for university, where a more elaborate system like it is already set up and being used.

What's News at the Library

New books for readers of all ages, interests

By Michele Duczek
Librarian

Last week I mentioned a new book, The McIntyre Liar, by David Bly. I took this book home over the weekend and found it to be a great read. The characters are wonderful and the situations hilarious, on the fine line between truth and exaggeration. Even though it is a youth book I'm sure a lot of adults will enjoy it as well.

Anyone thinking of buying a new car might want to take a look at the latest issue of Consumer Report which recently arrived at the library. It is their annual car issue with the ratings of several models.

Here are a few more books

recently arrived:

Canadian National's Western Depots by Charles Bohl. The exhaustively researched book is devoted exclusively to train depots. Almost all of its photographs show the depots in use. An excellent choice for the historian as well as the train enthusiast.

What Your Parents Never Told You About Being A Mom or Dad by Stan and Jan Berenstain. In the style of Erma Bombeck, this book mixes humor with practical advice on navigating the treacherous waters of parenthood. Illustrations accent the text in several places.

Traitor's Gate by Anne Perry. Thomas Pitt is charged with investigating a matter of treason. At the same time he is looking into the sudden tragic death of his childhood mentor. Somehow the two things are related. Mystery fans will enjoy this one.

McNally's Trial by Lawrence Sanders. Archie McNally is back and investigating the dramatic increase in business of Palm Beach's most exclusive funeral home.

Beethoven Lives Upstairs by Barbara Nichol with illustrations by Scott Cameron. Told as a series of letters from a young boy, Christoph, to his uncle, this junior book tells the engaging tale of a young boy in 1822 Vienna who has Beethoven as an upstairs neighbor.

The Ghost Inside the Monitor by Margaret J. Anderson. A ghost inhabits a computer in Sarah's father's computer store. Soon Sarah is being drawn back in time to solve a century-old mystery of the ghost's original disappearance. Sarah must succeed or risk being stuck in the past forever. For the computer buffs among the junior set.

BANTAMS OFF TO CALGARY - Elk Point Bantam Lightning Elks headed off to Calgary last Thursday for the annual Value Drug Mart Bantam Hockey Tournament. No results had been received on the tournament to press time.

SADDLE LAKE TOPS NOVICE TOURNEY - Saddle Lake Warriors defeated the host team in overtime Sunday to win the 8-team Elk Point Novice Tournament. The Warriors were tied 4-4 with Elk Point Raiders at the end of regulation time, and took just 10 seconds of the overtime period to capture the win.

ELK POINT RAIDERS - placed second in their 8-team tournament this weekend. Lloydminster Husky Oil defeated St. Paul Sharks to take third place. Other teams taking part in the tourney were the Vermilion Bruins, Lloydminster Fountain Tire, Fort Saskatchewan Bullfighters and Vegreville Warriors.

Raiders host Novice Hockey tournament

Elk Point Raiders hosted an eight team Novice Hockey tournament this past weekend, and ended up winning the silver medals after an overtime loss to Saddle Lake Warriors.

The final game was close throughout, although Saddle Lake took an early one goal lead, increasing the margin to two before Elk Point made it onto the scoreboard.

The Raiders, however, made up for lost time, scoring two in 47 seconds late in the first period and adding a third just as the period ended. Colton Hoffman, Justin Schatz and Kyle Neilsen made the goals, with Neilsen, Chris Korpan, Curtis Salt, , TC Quinney and Hoffman providing assists.

Saddle Lake tied things up again early in the second period, the score remaining 3-3 for 15 minutes, until Hoffman scored his second of the game off an assist from Mark Ference. Elk Point's lead remained for a full period plus two minutes, until Saddle Lake tied the game with 4:02 remaining. The Warriors scored the final goal of the game 10 seconds into overtime to win the tournament.

PAN CANADIAN DONATES $5000 FOR ARENA DEBT - Ron Salt of Pan Canadian Petroleum (right) presents Arena Operating Committee Chairman Kevin Bjornstad with $5000 toward the arena's Debt Reduction Project. Donations such as this are helping the debt to shrink considerably.

THANK YOU

Elk Point Minor Hockey would like to congratulate the Bantam Lightning Elks on their recent victory of being the first gold medal winners in the 21 years of minor hockey history.

We would also like to thank the volunteers who put in countless hours of work to make the past weekend a huge success and to the sponsors and fans that supported us throughout the whole weekend.

Also a comment to our neighbor to the north west that predicted that they would not be in contention in the league finals --

Lightning Has Struck Twice Elk Point Minor Hockey
